

INTERNATIONAL UNION OF
PURE AND APPLIED CHEMISTRY

6th International IUPAC Conference On Green Chemistry

After Dresden, Moscow, Ottawa, Foz do Iguaçu and Durban, the IUPAC Green Chemistry Conferences will move to Italy...to Venice on 4-9 September.

We believe that the perception that Society has of the role of Chemistry is being elevated by these IUPAC Conferences, and that chemists deserve to be perceived as people who create a dialogue with politicians, economists, entrepreneurs, and opinion formers.

Green Chemists map the way to a sustainable future, and foster the development of industrially significant, and economic, breakthrough technologies.

The previous conferences have been outstanding events with a large number of participants. For the Venice 2016 Conference we expect over 500 participants as a large, worldwide involvement from industries, academic and institutional bodies owing to the international recognition that IUPAC (International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry) itself and its Green Chemistry Conferences have attained over since the first edition in 2006.

The Conference aims to have an exciting range of cutting edge Green Chemistry to reflect recent advances in a truly international coverage. Major topics are Materials, Bioprocesses, Energy, Industrial Processes and Molecular Innovation, Green Policy, Sustainability and Safety.

You may identify the different kind of available sponsorships as well as some major information of the Conference. Dedicated Exposition areas will be available, too. During the Conference also a few Institutional events will take place of which I would be glad to let you know.

There are several types of sponsorships available, dedicated exhibition areas will also be available.
